The War Today..

Next Objectives

REPORTS that the Chinese have cleared the enemy from several towns along a 75-mile stretch of coast from Fochow to Siapu naturally revive consideration of an American amphibious operation in that direction.

There are several objectives to be gained which must weigh heavily on military leaders.

Some months ago it was thought that occupation of Formosa and a drive into the continent might prove desirable, might even be necessary if Japan could be invaded. Then it began to appear that Formosa could be neutralized, and that an invasion of Japan might entail little more effort, and might produce infinitely greater results, than a strike into Japanese-occupied China.

That still remains true. An invasion of Japan embraces the strong possibility that it would be decisive, whereas, barring a surrender in which military men decline to place any hope, operations in China would only be preliminary to the knockout.

But there are problems connected with the invasion of Japan which have not been solved, and chief among probably is the lack of sufficient air bases. Certainly we do not now hold the ground to care for all available planes. Compare England and Italy with Okinawa. Two and Saipan and you get some idea. And England was terribly crowded.

Of course, carrier planes play an important role in the Pacific. With help from the British, there might be more than 100 carriers available for the Japanese invasion, most of them small. Perhaps 40 major ones and 75 of the escort type.

All of this "in sight" air strength, then, does not add up to anything like the 11,000 sorties flown over Normandy on D-day. For the Japanese, it would be plenty, but to meet American ideas for use of overwhelming strength, it would be nice to have more.

Opening up the east-central section of China for delivery of supplies for the Chinese to use during the long months it will take us to subdue Honshu also would be important, and might go far to eliminate the possibility that, after the conquest of the islands, we would have to move on to North China and Manchuria.

However, we can't help but remember what happened to Germany's vaunted "last ditch" fight after the fall of Berlin. Cutting off the head of that snake finished the job. And our planners in the Pacific might well prefer to direct all their force toward the heart of Japan. Still, it is good to have an alternative, and the Japanese from concentrating their defensive strength against any one sure thing.

Marines Overrun Naha Field After Surprise Landing

(By Associated Press)

GUAM, June 5.—American Marines fought for complete control of the last Japanese-held airfield on Okinawa today in the wake of a surprise amphibious landing which put strong American forces on three sides of the enemy's Oroku peninsula garrison.

The Sixth division overran half of the big Naha airfield yesterday as it plunged ahead from the southern shore of Naha bay, on the island's west coast. Other Tenth army troops in the central and eastern areas, reached the southern coast and registered advances up to three miles, a record for the campaign.

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz in a hearty message of "well done," to the officers and men of Lt. Gen. Simon Bolivar Buckner's Tenth army, foresaw the conclusion of the Okinawa campaign within the next "three or four days" if they "can maintain their high-speed maneuvers."

Supplies were parachuted to battle line troops as the clinging mud continued to hold supply vehicles in its grip.

Japanese propagandists viewed their garrison's lethal position with alarm and Tokyo's newspapers agreed "unmistakable signs point to the enemy's intention to invade the Japanese mainland." Japanese Domei news agency warned the loss of the island would lead to increase air attacks, both from Okinawa-based planes and by superfortresses.

Surprisingly light opposition was encountered by the fourth regiment as it plunged ahead from an 1,800 yard beachhead to attack Naha airfield, best of the Japanese-built dromes on the island.

In American hands, the airfield will serve as a potent base for bomber strikes against Japan proper.

Associated Press Correspondent Al Dopking, with the Fourth Marine regiment which executed the amphibious hop, wrote that the Leathernecks found the operation easier than they expected, and casualties were light.

"Most of their trouble," he said, "was in getting over the coral reef which stretched out into the Pacific for 200 yards. Some amphibious tractors hung up on the reef."

U. S. Ship Losses Shown

Admiral Nimitz reported the Marines already had constructed bridges to Onoyama island, in the center of Naha harbor, and were moving reinforcements and supplies across to strengthen the new position.

There were indications that a fairly large group of Japanese troops was intact near the southern end of Naha airfield, for the Marines encountered considerable fire. They also ran into anti-personnel and land mines.

Similar fire was encountered by First Marine division, which banged ahead up to 1,000 yards near the center of the rapidly-changing line.

The Seventh Infantry division, already in possession of 8,000 yards of the southeastern coastline, was rapidly overrunning the peninsula.

While the 77th Infantry division moved up to cover the Tenth army's right flank, the 96th Infantry division seized Iwa, a sizable town.

Admiral Nimitz gave further information on the Japanese air attack on United States fleet units at Okinawa on Sunday, reporting that one United States light vessel was damaged and 45 enemy planes were shot down. This was 19 more than his previous count.

The Navy announced at Washington that the destroyers Morrison and Luce were lost off Okinawa, with heavy casualties. Each carried a crew of more than 200.

This brought to 313 the announced number of naval vessels lost in the war.

Six hours after the last bomber turned away Japanese broadcast conceded that fires were only "gradually being extinguished."

Tokyo said fire bombs also set blazes in Mikagomachi and Ashiya, industrial towns, respectively two and six miles east of Naha.

The Domei news agency, quoting a joint army-navy communique issued in Naha, claimed 56 Superfortresses were shot down, and 144 "heavily damaged."

Seven Japanese interceptors were listed as lost, including those that carried out body-crashing attacks.

Superfortresses centered their incendiaries on a heavily industrialized square mile area of eastern Naha, including the city's two main railway stations, the extensive Kobe steel works, shipyards and major docks.

MILITARY TIRES 85 PCT. SYNTHETIC

AKRON, June 5.—Eighty-five per cent of current United States military truck and airplane tire production is of synthetic rubber and at least half of the nation's 29,000,000 passenger cars roll on the same material, James J. Newsman, vice president of the B. F. Goodrich Co., declared today.

In a statement on the fifth anniversary of the first synthetic tire display—a dozen or so put on view in a New York hotel, Newsman said, "Since then nearly 33 million more, most of them 99.8 per cent synthetic, have been made."

In the postwar era, the Goodrich official declared "it is likely that the ultimate combination for tires will involve use of both synthetic and natural rubber, possibly with natural in the carcass and synthetic in the tread."

Fur Thieves Stop For Beer, Caught

CLEVELAND, June 5.—Theft of 60 fur coats valued at $20,900 was frustrated by police today within an hour after the coats were stolen from offices of the Superior Transfer Co.

Detective Inspector Charles O. Nevel said all coats were recovered and four men arrested for investigation in connection with the robbery.

The garments had been collected from Greater Cleveland homes and piled on tables awaiting delivery to storage warehouses. They were taken between 3 a. m. and 4:30 a. m. by a gang, one member of which entered the Transfer company quarters on a pretext and locked the watchman in a closed van, Nevel reported.

The detective said police received an anonymous tip shortly afterward that a truckload of stolen furs was parked at E. 45th st. and Central ave. and that two of the thieves would be found in a beer parlor there and a third across the street.

Police arrested all three men from descriptions furnished by the anonymous informant. Nevel said the watchman also was being questioned. One of the suspects, he added, is a parolee from Mansfield reformatory, where he was sent for auto theft.

B-29 Crew Readies Bombs For Raid On Japan

The virtual isolation of Japan—less spectacular but perhaps militarily more important than the flaming ruin inflicted upon her cities—is the crowning achievement of American air power in the Pacific. War industries of Japan now are cut off almost entirely from the formerly rich flow of supplies of war materials from Asia.

Superforts like the one shown above are hitting Japan hard, the latest target being Kobe, Nipponese transportation and industrial center. In the picture a ground crew on Saipan readies bombs for the "Dauntless Doty" of the 21st Bomber command.

Britain And United States Meet Soviet Demands For Warships

(By Associated Press)

LONDON, June 5.—Prime Minister Churchill disclosed today that Britain met Russian demands for part of the Italian fleet by turning over eight former American destroyers among other ships.

The United States also turned over some ships, mostly merchantmen, but also including the U. S. Cruiser Milwaukee, Churchill told commons.

The Russians, he said, raised the question of the disposition of the Italian navy immediately after Italy's surrender. They asked for one battleship, one cruiser, eight destroyers, four submarines, and 40,000 tons of merchant shipping.

The agreement to turn ships over to Russia was reached at Teheran, he said.

"Temporary Loan"

Since Italian ships were built mostly for temperate waters of the Mediterranean, Churchill continued it was decided they would continue in service in the Allied cause, and an equivalent number of British warships and merchantmen would be delivered to the Red navy on temporary loan, Churchill said this was the action taken.

Half of the merchant ships and all the warships with the exception of the United States Cruiser Milwaukee were provided by the British government.

The British warships handed over were the Battleship Royal Sovereign, eight former American destroyers, and four modern submarines.

"Further, a destroyer was made available to provide spare parts," Churchill said he assumed "full personal responsibility" for the transaction.

He did not make clear just what the U. S. contribution was outside of the Cruiser Milwaukee, but it was presumed the Americans supplied half of the 40,000 tons of merchant shipping the Russians sought, Churchill said.

The disposition of the Italian fleet will be left to the peace conference, Churchill said.

Laborite Ivor Thomas suggested that, with the war against Germany over, the time had come for Russia to return the ships so that they could be used in the Pacific.

"These vessels would not be vessels we would use in the war against Japan," Churchill said. "We send them to the other end of the world only our best and newest."

MERCURY TUMBLES TO 36 HERE TODAY

Salem thermometers registered another low June reading of 36 today, following yesterday's "summer" temperature of 42 degrees.

By coincidence, on June 4, 1859—86 years ago—a similar cold spell wrought destruction to crops here, according to records kept by Daniel Howell Hise, author of "Pap's Diary."

His writings of that date told of clear, cold weather and heavy frost which killed corn, potatoes and all vegetables. Covered garden crops were even frozen and part of the wheat crop was lost.

The board of education last night authorized the employment of Miss Doris Mae Johnson of R. D. 3, Alliance, a graduate of Mount Union college, to teach next year at Salem Junior High school.

Miss Johnson, who majored in Latin and mathematics, holds a master's degree from the University of Iowa, where she taught last year in the college's training high school. She also taught previously at Hickey High school in Medina county.

ARMY TO AID SCHOOL SHOP

Donates Working Equipment; Teacher Appointments Delayed

As a result of a request from the board of education to the commanding general of the Army's Fifth Service command, Salem Schools are to receive one wood turning lathe, two grinders and buffers and two engine lathes for use in the Salem vocational training program, Supt. E. S. Kerr told the board last night.

The equipment will be forwarded as soon as it is available from Army use, Kerr was informed in a letter in answer to the request. Charges will be made for the crating and shipping of the machines only.

The board adjourned sine die after discussing provisions and contracts for the rehiring of teachers for the coming school year. Salaries and salary provisions will be settled at a meeting soon after definite word on the state's school finances is received.

The Daniels-Cramer bill is now on Gov. Lausche's desk authorizing a larger allotment for the operation of the Ohio school system.

Churchill said he assumed "full personal responsibility" for the transaction.

Occupation Of Beaten Nation Is Completed

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, June 5.—Germany's frontiers were rolled back to the boundaries of Dec. 31, 1937, today in a joint occupation statement by the Allied powers.

The statement, setting up occupation zones for the United States, Great Britain, France and Russia, recreates the German nation as it was before Hitler's annexation of Austria and Czechoslovakia. The declaration was made simultaneously in Washington, Moscow, London and Paris.

No announcement was made regarding a joint control arrangement for Austria, which is expected to be set up in the fairly near future.

Nor was there any clarification of what is to be done in Czechoslovakia, which is partly occupied by Russian troops on the east and American troops in the west.

Final settlement of Czech boundaries is considered a matter to be decided at a peace conference.

With Germany's unconditional surrender, the statement said, there no longer is any central government or authority there "capable of accepting responsibility for the maintenance of order, the administration of the country and compliance with the requirements of the victorious powers."

"It is in these circumstances necessary, without prejudice to any subsequent decisions that may be taken respecting Germany," the pronouncement went on, "to make provision for the cessation of any further hostilities on the part of the German armed forces, for the maintenance of order in Germany and for the administration of the country, and to announce the immediate requirements with which Germany must comply."

Four occupation zones were set up and allotted to the victorious Allied powers as follows:

A Eastern zone to the Soviet Union.

A Northwestern zone of the United Kingdom.

A Southwestern zone to the United States.

A Western zone to France.

In addition, an area of "greater Berlin" was created, to be administered by an inter-Allied governing authority with representatives of each of the four powers.

None of the zones was further defined in the statement.

"The governments of the four powers hereby announce," one of the series of four statements on an occupation said, "that it is their intention to consult with the governments of other United Nations in connection with the exercise of this (occupation) authority."

At another point it was specified: "United Nations organizations will, if admitted by the control council to operate in Germany, be subordinate to the Allied control machinery and answerable to it."

Eisenhower In Berlin

The statement was released through the state department here as Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower left his Frankfurt-on-Main headquarters for a four-power meeting of Allied occupation commanders in Berlin.

A SHAEF announcement said Eisenhower went to the German capital as "commander of the forces of occupation."

In connection with the control of Berlin, the State department announcement said:

"The administration of the 'Greater Berlin' area will be directed by an inter-Allied governing authority, which will operate under the general direction of the control council, and will consist of four commandants, each of whom will serve in rotation as chief commandant. They will be assisted by Europe's needy people."

Woolen materials for boys' trousers, girls' capes and women's dresses is now on hand at the Red Cross office in the Memorial building and present volunteer sewing groups are unable to handle and process it swiftly enough, officials said.

Workers now gather to sew on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday mornings and afternoons, but provisions can be made for others who wish to sew on Mondays or Tuesdays, they said.

Anyone willing to help out can do so by calling the Red Cross office, 5219, or by coming in any morning or afternoon.

ADM. MITSCHER BACK IN U.S.

Says Jap Suicide Plane Menace In Pacific Is Being Reduced

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, June 5.—Vice Admiral Marc A. Mitscher, commander of the fast Carrier Task force in the Okinawa operations, said today the Japanese suicide plane menace was "daily being reduced."

And, he told a news conference "the indications are it will be further reduced."

Mitscher, here for conferences at the Navy department, said that "actually in all the time I have been out there (the Pacific) only 10 per cent of the planes get through our air defenses."

"Of that 10 per cent, 99 per cent are shot down, and the remaining 10 per cent, or one per cent of the original total, are effective," he said.

Mitscher asserted the Japanese suicide bombing technique actually is just dive bombing, except that they sacrifice a man with their plane.

He conceded, however, that the suicide technique is more accurate than ordinary dive bombing.

Says Japs Won't Quit

He said the Japs won't quit that through "can practically be eliminated" by some redesigning of equipment aboard ships.

Mitscher said he had not yet encountered any Japanese plane that could out-perform modern fighters carried aboard U. S. carriers.

Long-time commander of the celebrated Task Force 58, Mitscher arrived from the Pacific yesterday. He expressed some concern over what he said appeared to be a "general impression" that the Pacific war is "still a second front."

"Now that the number one front has cleared itself up," he said, "I feel we had better start pushing in order to clean up that little affair in the west as soon as possible. Knowing the Japanese, I am convinced there is no danger of them surrendering for a long time. They will surrender only when they are thoroughly, thoroughly whipped."

"Given the men and material to fight, we can do it."

Asserting that he had read and heard some criticism of strategy in the Okinawa operations, Admiral Mitscher said in his opinion "everybody out there is doing the best humanly possible."

He said his carrier task force had not lost a single vessel to suicide attack and that no major combat vessel larger than a destroyer had been so lost.

Russia May Have Been Misled

If the enigma of Russia's official attitude cannot be dissolved, the goodwill of the United States seemingly must continue to be the forfeit.

Furthermore, if Americans must assume that the Russian government's attitude has been methodically calculated to make them uneasy about the depth and breadth of Russian goodwill, any additional goodwill on their part will be impossible.

But this assumption does not necessarily have to be made. Nor does it have to be concluded that there is no help for Russia's official attitude. There is nothing wrong with it that a good public relations expert couldn't fix, provided the proper authorities want it fixed.

There may be nothing wrong with it that cannot be traced more or less directly to a misunderstanding on the part of Russian officials. They apparently have been made to feel in their contacts with representatives of the United States that this country's goodwill does not have to be won and preserved in the usual way.

Russia may have been misled at the official level. That is the kindest explanation that can be made for a record that includes the antics of American Communists, their effort to sabotage war production before Germany attacked Russia, the Russian demand for a second front before the United States was ready to establish one, the too prompt moves to exploit the political opportunities in the greatly enlarged Russian sphere of military influence and an attitude of brusqueness which seems to say that other nations can like it or lump it.

These things have led by direction and indirection to a feeling that the United States government has followed a policy of appeasing Russia and that a change of attitude is overdue. If this has been the case, the Russians have been misled; appeasement never has represented the attitude of the American people toward any foreign government. It is as far from their inclinations as they believe the attitude of like-it-or-lump-it is from the attitude of the Russian people.

Fate has changed the technique of further direct dealing between the United States and the Soviet Union; President Truman has replaced the late Franklin D. Roosevelt. Without knowing what the latter may have said or implied to lead Marshal Stalin and his government to believe they could have what they wanted from America on their own terms, Mr. Truman's countrymen can agree that among his principal tasks is to shatter that misconception. It is likely that Russia's official attitude would cease to call for appeasement if no further appeasement were forthcoming.

Life Is Never Cheap

An official declaration that the Army-Navy casualty total finally has passed a million is almost a statement of pride. A million casualties make a staggering total, but a relatively small one. America has not been profligate.

The British Empire total, announced last Tuesday by Prime Minister Churchill, was 1,128,315 on that date, with 397,201 killed, as against the United States total of 1,062,887, with 227,997 killed.

Another comparison is with the latest official Russian total, now almost a year old. But even a year ago, an official Russian source put the number of Russians killed, taken prisoner, or missing at 5,300,000, exclusive of wounded. An American dispatch from Berlin last month estimated the revised total of Russian soldiers killed as more than six million, but probably no more than seven and one-half million, plus approximately the same number of civilian deaths. British civilian deaths, incidentally, are officially estimated at 60,585.

Prime Minister Churchill believes that at least six million Germans have been killed, a total that apparently includes civilians. A conservative estimate of the Germans killed in military service is between three and one-half and four million.

An estimate for China places the death total in its armies at three million. By the time Japan has been forced to surrender unconditionally, its total may be equally enormous, if it continues a suicide policy.

Still another comparison is with World War I, when the United States sustained average monthly casualties during the period of actual hostilities of 49,000. In this war, casualties per month of actual hostilities have been 24,000. There were more deaths from disease than from battle in the United States army in World War I. In this war disease has been controlled.

War seems to cheapen human life. But life is never cheap. Britain and France suffered grievously from loss of more men than they could afford to lose in World War I. Germany's losses may prove more damaging than any other circumstance of its defeat. Russian losses are certain to be felt keenly. Ultimately, the loss of men will be more important than the losing or winning of the war.

A Difference With a Wallop

Chief among the characteristics of fascism, regardless of the name it assumes, is the one-party system. Without a political monopoly, dictatorship is out of the question. Dictatorship and fascism are, of course, the same thing, even though they may use two other names.

It never was more important than it is now to make sure that everything is called by its right name. A war has been fought and brought to a costly conclusion in Europe. Ideologies labeled fascism, communism, national socialism and so on have been proclaimed as great public issues. A great many people are out to sell a great many other people a bill of goods under false pretenses. They are calling names with more zeal than honesty.

The key to the difference between government by the people and government by one man is the status of the political opposition. In a dictatorship, the opposition is killed outright, held in jail, or driven underground. In government responsible for all the people, the opposition says what it has to say without fear of reprisals; at the next election, the opposition may become the government.

When Representative Vorys of Ohio and four other Republican members of the House warn President Truman they will back him to the limit if he stands by the letter of an amendment restricting lend-lease to America's actual allies, but will resist him to the limit if he doesn't, that's government responsible to the people. If the five representatives hadn't dared to speak their piece for fear of reprisals, that would have been dictatorship, fascism, authoritarianism, or one of the other names that old-fashioned despotism goes by in a modern age.

The Stars Say

For Wednesday, June 6.

ALTHOUGH there may be a dash of abandon, stimulated by a feel of firm foundations underfoot, with promise of enduring security, place, prestige and happiness in the domestic, affectional or social status, there may be petty limitations, conflicts or antagonisms to cope with, in order to reap the highest and most cherished objectives. It might be well to adhere to matters well in hand rather than to start new projects or any bold adventures.

The element of charm, allure, beauty or idealism, or possibly a temptation to celebrate a worthy occasion, may give zest to emotional gratifications. Routine may be postponed for conservative festivities.

Those whose birthday it is may be disposed to postpone their more serious obligations toward foundations already placed upon well-established basis for a period of celebration, parties, romantic or dramatic adventures, in which domestic, social and sentimental values have appropriate demands. Idealism, charm, youth and beauty claim their due recognition, but the urge to give these expression should not prompt neglect of more practical objectives already firmly established.

Attend to these and postpone new ventures of large scope and significance. Be not carried away by imagination or fantasy, keep the feet on earth while gazing upon the stars.

A child born on this day will have a keen urge to indulge in day-dreams or emotional drives, with love of youth, beauty and high ideals. At the same time it is practical, shrewd and farseeing and should have a prosperous and happy life.

Emphysema Treatment Gives Relief

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

A NORMAL person who is high up in the air at an altitude of some 20,000 feet may develop a condition called mountain sickness. The symptoms of this disorder are due to a lack of oxygen and consist of headache, dizziness, loss of appetite, sickness to the stomach, lessened hearing power, weakness, tiredness, sleeplessness and rapid beating of the heart.

There is also a disorder known as emphysema, in which the air sacs in the lungs are dilated and stretched. The symptoms of this condition are just like those of mountain sickness, because a person with the disorder evidently cannot get sufficient air in and out of his lungs to keep the blood supplied with the needed amount of oxygen. So, in treating emphysema, Doctor Alfred F. Goggio of Boston gives oxygen to break the chain of fatigue and chronic lack of oxygen. He has found this treatment helpful for persons with this condition.

Trouble Inhaling

A person with emphysema may breathe in less than one-fourth as much air through the lungs as does a normal person in the same period of time. A person with emphysema cannot blow out a candle; he cannot expel enough air from his lungs with sufficient power to cause the flame to go out. Not only may the air sacs in the lungs be dilated, but there may also be some spasm of the bronchi or small tubes in the lungs.

To determine whether there is any spasm of the bronchi, Doctor Goggio suggests that the patient be allowed to breathe the vapor of a solution of ephedrine which has the ability of relaxing the bronchial spasm. If, within seven minutes after breathing in the ephedrine, the patient is found to breathe better and to get more air in and out of his lungs, it means that spasm of the bronchi is present.

Content of Blood

The blood of a patient with emphysema even during rest contains more of the waste material, carbon dioxide, and less oxygen than that of the normal person. It is often found that in these patients during exercise the amount of oxygen in the blood approaches

Scientist Church Holds Annual Meeting Monday

Lasting world peace has its roots in the permanency of divine laws and cannot be expected to rise from the foundations of selfish beship in the Mother Church. The board of directors told the annual meeting of the Mother Church, the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Monday.

Highlighting the meeting was the election of Mrs. Myrtle Holm Smith of Waban, Mass., as president of the Mother Church for the ensuing year, succeeding Paul Stark Seeley, and the reelection of Roy Garrett Watson, treasurer, and Mary G. Ewing, clerk.

The directors stated that members of the Christian Science Church was now four times greater than it was 35 years ago.

Trustees of the Christian Science Publishing society reported the most active year in the society's history, measured in terms of circulation, advertising, and total business volume. The Christian Science Monitor and other publications of the society, all reached new highs in circulation, they said. The Monitor's Paris branch has been reopened and overseas activities "will be resumed as rapidly as we are privileged to do so."

Jozef Elsner swallowed hard. He knew the music. He knew it well. He swallowed again, then again. He pushed his way into the crowded music room.

"Sh—Liszt is playing."
—Yes, Liszt! But what is he playing? He is playing the music of Frederic Chopin!
Deeper and deeper into the crowd he went with no apologies for his pushing.

"Quiet, Liszt is playing."
The waltz was concluded and people were applauding and Jozef Elsner stopped to join in the handsclapping.

"Superb!" called out the critic Kalkbrenner. "But whose music is it? I never heard it."

"Jozef Elsner peered through the dark. 'You never heard it! It is a waltz, my dear friend—by my pupil—Chopin!'"
—Your pupil!
—Yes, my dear friend; my pupil."

"Proves what I've always said," replied the sarcastic Kalkbrenner; "anything sounds good — when played by Liszt!"

There were calls for quiet. The piano sounded again; another Chopin composition, the Butterfly Etude. The guests were in for an evening of Chopin by Liszt.

"—Good, eh?" Jozef Elsner pulled at Kalkbrenner's arm. "Also by my pupil—" —And played by Liszt," Kalkbrenner muttered.

A bar of light, at first only a streak, fell across the room, then the streak widened as a door to the rear from where the light came quietly opened.

But there was a scraping of chairs, a shuffling of feet and a stretching of necks as the audience sought to determine the cause of the disturbance.

Madame Sand was in the doorway. In her hand was a lighted candle. She came into the room, down the center aisle.

—Sh—
The playing continued. But all eyes were on Madame Sand as she made her way to the piano platform—quietly, silently, slowly, the candelabrum lighting her way.

As she approached the dais it was apparent that two persons not one, were on the stage—and the person standing alongside the piano, not touching it, was—Franz Liszt.

Chopin was playing.
Frederic finished the Etude with a great flourish.

Silence. The final note brought no applause, not a sound.
But the silence was brief. The audience, recovering from its astonishment, rose as one person—roared, shouted, clapped, yelled and

Deacon McKechnie's Cast-Offs Paving Way To Some Wins

BOWMAN NEW VETERAN DOING REDLEG TRICK

McKechnie Able to Pick Them When Other Clubs Say No, Pass By

BY JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)
Deacon Bill McKechnie's weakness for "washed up" discards of the major league stock pile is paying big dividends in the Cincinnati Reds' current eight-game win streak, longest active string in the big show.

Give Willy Bill a veteran pitcher who has been around and it's two to one he'll pop up as a winner in a Redleg uniform.

Joe Bowman is the latest example of the McKechnie touch. The 35-year-old right-hander was tossed on the bone pile by the Athletics, Giants, Phillies, Pirates and Red Sox before Cincinnati picked him up by the waiver route a week ago.

In his first start for McKechnie, Bowman whipped Brooklyn, in the first game of Sunday's clean sweep. Walter (Boom Boom) Beck also qualifies for the class with two recent victories over the Phillies. As much as Detroit needed help for Hal Newhouse and Dizzy Trout, the Tigers decided Beck wouldn't do. The Phils and Dodgers had cut him loose years ago but Cincy signed him and he's helping out in their hour of need. So is 44-year-old Hod Lisenbee who starred two decades ago.

Walters Helping
Now that Bucky Walters has snapped out of it and peeled off three wins in his last four outings and Ed Hueser, another pickup from the big league ash can two years ago, has regained his early-season magic, McKechnie has his club on the upgrade.

The Cincinnati fans, who have been so allergic to turnstile that hardly 100,000 have paid, including 31,000 opening day, have been slow to accept the 1945 McKechnie version.

With the majors resuming operations today after a day of inactivity, the Reds' victory string is endangered by the onrushing Pittsburgh Pirates who lead the best interleague record in baseball.

Counting the two East vs West series, including a home series in each town, the Buccos have won 16 and lost 7, tops in the National and better than the St. Louis Browns' American high of 13-9 against the Red Sox, A's and Yankees at home and abroad.

DERBY DAY LOOKS LIKE CROWDED DAY

Jam Seems Certain as Field Nears 16 Horses And More To Come

By ORLO ROBERTSON
LOUISVILLE, June 5.—It's a good thing that the Kentucky Derby is going to be run Saturday, considering the rate owners and trainers are getting ideas about starting their horses in the $75,000 race. As it is, there figures to be quite a traffic jam around 5:30 p. m. (Central War time) at the head of Churchill Downs' home stretch.

Until a few days ago the mile and one-quarter jaunt for three-year olds shaped up as a merry little party with a dozen or less horses parading to the post as the band plays "My Old Kentucky Home" and some 50,000 fans thrill to the sight of America's most impressive racing scene.

Now, however, there is a possibility that as many as 16 may don silks although it is likely that several of the owners will think twice before laying the $500 starting fee on the line. The rush started last Saturday when the highly regarded colts quartered at the Downs bowed to a pair of outsiders, Darby Dieppe and Fighting Step, in the Blue Grass stakes.

Look For Jam
Word was not long in coming from Canada that H. C. Hatch, Toronto distiller, was shipping Pair Jester in the same car with the Kenilworth Farm's Kenilworth Lad and Bert G.

With the possibility of such a large field and chances there will be plenty of jamming at the start as the horses battle for racing room in the five-sixteenths of a mile run to the first turn, we lean toward a pair of eastern colts to take down first and second money. They are Col. C. V. Whitney's Jeep and Alexis from Henry Linger's Christiana farm.

Both are the type that should keep out of early trouble since they are not fast starters. But they can turn it on when they hit that last bend, a quarter-mile from home.

CLEVELAND, June 5.—The Cleveland Indians begin a round of entertaining at home tonight when the Detroit Tigers call for the second time this season.

Right-hander Charles (Red) Embree will serve 'em up for the Tribe and Frank Overmire for Detroit. The Indians will take the field without Manager Lou Boudreau, who is suffering from an eye ulcer.

The Clevelanders returned home yesterday from their first eastern tour of the season. Their schedule calls for a three-game series with Detroit and a four-game joust with the St. Louis Browns before opening a western trip against the Chicago White Sox June 12.

Were Tied
Burke and Shute were tied going into the final hole but the Clevelanders made it in par three while Shute shot into a trap and then skidded a nine-foot putt past the cup.

Shute scored the only sub-par round of the day but his putting was off and his opening and closing 40's gave the match to Burke. Burke chalked up 36-37-35-40 for his rounds while Shute listed 40-35-34-40.

Three players tied for third: Alex Redl, former Akron Firestone pro on leave from the Merchant Marine; Steve Pipoly of the Youngstown Tippecanoe Country club, who took amateur honors; and Pro Johnny Malutic of Struthers.
